What do you think

by Leszek Czuchajowski (translated from Polish)

What do you think-

should we scare people and tell them all the truth?
Should we tell them they will all perish if we, water molecules, decide to straighten ourselves out instead of being bent over like a cripple?
Would they understand that such an event would prevent us from attracting each other and we would spread all over as a gas leaving them just as air sputters from a tank so they would be left flat with their noses pressed to the ground?
We could indeed say this to them but they—people—are so arrogant that they would refuse to believe that so much depends upon us small molecules of water.

"What do you think" is from the collection of poems titled Molecules, Women, Gods and published by the Plus Publishing, Krakow, Poland, in 2002.
